WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES
IN FRANCE, July 22 (1:00 a. m.)— The Franco-American advance continues everywhere from Soissons to east of Chateau-Thierry.Oulchy le Chateau has been penetrated, placing the railway and the main highway from Chateau-Thierry to Fismes under Allied control and thus adding to the difficulties of the German retreat from the Marne.American and French infantry are across the Marne in great numbers and are heavily reinforced by Allied artillery, which effected the passage without opposition. French cavalry is operating northeast of Chateau-Thierry, far in advance of the infantry.American field guns are firing on Soissons, while the Franco-American line has been straightened south of that city until practically all the main highway from Soissons to Chateau-Thierry is in our possession.German prisoners say their orders are to retire northward from the Marne to Fere-en-Tardenois, twelve miles northeast of Chateau-Thierry and fifteen miles southeast of Soissons.The crown prince's army group is now on the retreat everywhere north of the Marne. The Allied line runs well north of Chateau-Thierry and contact has been established with our lines northwest of that place.In addition to crossing the Soissons-Chateau-Thierry road on a wide front south of the former city, the Americans and French are marching on the road northwest of the latter. French cavalry is scouting ahead of the infantry, seeking to keep in contact with the retreating Germans.Franco-American troops crossed the Marne without opposition early Sunday, using to a large extent the boats and foot bridges which the Germans were forced to abandon in their haste. Long lines of infantry and artillery poured across the river all day and into the night. The guns were set up quickly and shelled the enemy's rear guards.South of Soissons, the boches are putting up a desperate resistance.
Americans and French are advancing there across alternating plateaus and wooded ravines. The latter are filled with machine gun nests, about which German resistance centers.American troops fighting tirelessly, are cleaning up these nests. The small streams, running through some of the ravines, are no barriers to the doughboys. Some are so narrow the men leap across, while others they are forced to wade with guns and jacks held high above their heads.Every sort of unit is beginning to get into the fight. Several hundred military policemen, a supply company and several other units normally rated as non-combatants, as a result of the constant pleading, were put into the line.Soissons and all the Aisne bridges are under fire of the Allied artillery.
Heavy movements have been observed toward the rear, back of the lines, indicating possible withdrawal from the Soissons region, similar to that of Chateau-Thierry.Some of the most dramatic scenes are enacted in this war of movement.
Every unit is working tirelessly.
Trucks have been running day and night for four days, the drivers alternating in sleeping on the seat, while the others drive. Artillerymen lie down beside their guns to snatch a few winks of sleep while the pieces roar away almost on top of them.It is a common sight to see reinforcements along the roads in the rear, the men asleep on the ground, using their gas masks as pillows. Further forward the units are denied even this slight rest.One machine gun unit got so far ahead that it received no food for 24 hours. It sent word back and two motorcycles with side cars were loaded with rations.The drivers were told to reach the machine gunners at any cost. They rode over hills pitted with shell holes, across fields and dodged among the boche dead, but they reached the machine gunners.Cigarettes are now an important

CAVALRYFirst Horse Charge By Ger-

Bloodily RepulsedBY FRANK J. TAYLOR

IN FRANCE, July 21 (Night).— American troops, facing their first cavalry charge of the war, utterly wiped out a formidable force of German horsemen east of Rheims and defeated what apparently was an ambitious attempt to cut the Allied lines and reach Chalons. So far as is known, this is the first time the enemy has employed cavalry since the counter offensive began.Immediately after, the same American unit broke up a combined attack of infantry and tanks.The Americans held an important sector on a slight rise, behind a chalk-colored hill, over which were the enemy front positions. When the German cavalry topped the hill and swept down into the Americans, they ran into a unit which had a remarkable record for sharp-shooting.Opening up with machine guns, automatic rifles and Enfields, the Americans quickly dropped men and horses. The artillery joined in, adding to the slaughter. The cavalry dwindled until only a handful remained. These galloped back over the hill to the German lines.The Germans quickly re-organized for another attack. American observers spotted enemy tanks crawling over the chalk-like hill, accompanied by infantry in great strength.American artillery cut loose and the first salvo struck several tanks squarely, splitting them wide open. Simultaneously, the German infantry began melting away under the withering fire of the American infantry and machine gunners. This effort was broken up almost as quickly as the previous one and the Germans made no further attempts in this sector.Reinforced by French infantry, the Americans then attacked, driving the boches back beyond their original lines.Tales of American exploits are numerous as doughboys wander back to the hospitals and tell of their comrades.East of Chateau-Thierry, three Americans captured a German boat and rowed across the Marne under cover of darkness before the German retreat. They hid in bushes during the day, exploring the banks and discovering machine guns. Then they re-entered the boat and pushed their explorations farther. The boches discovered them and opened an intense machine gun fire. The Americans escaped by diving overboard and swimming half the time under the surface.The next night, they led a strong patrol of their pals across and extended their investigations, obtaining valuable information concerning the disposition of German units.After cleaning the south bank of fugitives tonight, American units crossed the Marne and combed the woods on the north bank east of Chateau-Thierry, capturing great numbers of prisoners. Once in a while they encountered boches who refused to surrender immediately.
The Germans didn't get another chance.An instance of great bravery occurred when an exploding shell buried a doughboy so that only his head protruded from the dirt. His struggles to extricate himself only exhausted him. Along came a pal, returning to a dressing station with a dangerous head wound. This doughboy stopped and began digging out the buried man. Finally his strength failed him and he fell unconscious.
He recovered somewhat and resumed his digging."You go and get your wound dressed; it's more serious than my trouble," the buried doughboy declared.
"Someone will find me."The other refused to go, and fell unconscious again. His companion, by super-human effort, managed to extricate himself at last. Although suffering from a badly wounded arm, he dragged his pal back to the dressing station. Twice on the way back they were bowled over by exploding shells.Regaining consciousness after treatment, the two pals lay recounting their experience.Quentin Roosevelt

MURDERED SOLDIER'S BODY FOUND IN BAY AT SAN FRANCISCOSAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—The body of an American soldier, his hands tied behind his back and a rag knotted tightly around his throat, was found floating in San Francisco bay today. Some of his clothing bore the initials "S. I. S. H." and a laundry mark. Otherwise there was no mark of identification. The soldier evidently had been dead more than a week.
About six dollars was found in his pocket, indicating that he was not murdered by robbers.The army intelligence bureau is cooperating with the police in probing the mystery.

ordnance bureau was asked by Secretary Daniels today to investigate the apparent failure of depth bombs by a seaplane upon the U-boat raider at Orleans Massachusetts, to explode.PROVINCETOWN, Mass., July 22.— Heavy cannonading was heard off shore here at 11:45 a. m. today.Naval vessels have been off this port hunting German submarines. Provincetown harbor is closed to all ships.Explosions resembling those of depth bombs were heard shortly after 4 a. m.A haze hid the origin of the firing but it is believed that naval vessels may have located a submarine. The firing was heard in several towns near here.SWEET SEAS FOR SUB WHICH SANK TUG BOATBOSTON, Mass., July 22.—United States naval craft were sweeping the seas today for the German submarine which sank the tug Perth Amboy and her tow of four barges three miles off the Cape Cod shore. The weather was heavy, making observation difficult. John Botovich and John Vitz, victims of the shelling, are in the Massachusetts general hospital here in a critical condition. One of Botovich's arms was almost completely severed.Botovich, in his account, declared one of the U-boat's shells passed through the pilot house of the Perth Amboy. This hurled him to the floor, practically severing his arm.

HAVE BEEN LANDED
IN VLADIVOSTOKWASHINGTON, July 22.—American Red Cross supplies are being sent into Vladivostok, the state department revealed today.Later, it may be found desirable to ship there some rifles made on Russian account before the Slavs quit the war. On this subject, however, officials are maintaining silence.Rumors said Germany and Finland had reached an agreement. This is doubted here.The Germans are said to have eighty thousand troops in Finland in anti-pation that the Finns sooner or later will make demands upon Russia involving the Murmansk railway and perhaps give Germany a chance to move up to the line.

MOONEY'S FATE IS IN HANDS OF GOVERNORSACRAMENTO, Cal., July 22.—Although Thomas J. Mooney, convicted in the preparedness parade bomb cases in San Francisco, is at San Quentin sentenced to hang within sixty days, there is not the slightest indication here as to what course Governor Stephens will adopt in the matter of his pardon requests.During the months that the Mooney case has been indirectly before him, Governor Stephens has made but one public statement and that was to the effect that he would consider carefully his application for executive clemency but would not be influenced by the organized sending of letters and telegrams in Mooney's behalf.Mooney's attorneys and friends confidently believe, it is said, that the governor will not permit the carrying out of the sentence. They are of the opinion that the governor's action will result in a new trial for Mooney.Then there are those in close touch with Governor Stephens who believe he will reprieve Mooney until the worries of the election are over and will then let the death sentence take its course.In short, Mooney's fate is problematical and rests alone in Governor Stephens' hands.'Fridensturm' Collapsed When French and Americans Began Their OffensiveBY LOWELL MELLETT (United Press Staff Correspondent) WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, July 21.—(Night).—
"Der Fridensturm," is not yet.It was under that name—"offensive for peace"—that the German commanders led their divisions into battle a week ago, from the consequences of which they are now endeavoring to extricate themselves.This word, obtained from prisoners in all parts of the long battle line, reveals the ambitious plans with which the Germans entered the battle.Because of the promise of peace thus held out to more than fifty divisions (600,000 men), the moral effect of the defeat is incalculable.The material effect is more easily summed up. Epernay is safer than ever. The forest of the mountain of Rheims remains an impenetrable barrier north of the Marne; the Germans must content themselves with the seizure of Rheims if they desire to soothe the folks at home, then take up new positions.The net result has been the loss of an appreciable portion of the territory taken May 27 and the lines of communication from Soissons to the rear are seriously threatened. This much is certain to date.French soldiers are unwilling—leastwise, as yet—to call this the "second battle of the Marne." They prefer to call it the "battle of Rheims mountain."As they analyze the German plan and the thoroughness with which it was shattered, it develops that the enemy did not seek to storm the mountain, but sought to turn it, first by crossing the Marne, then rapidly widening their bridgehead. Thence they expected the Allies to be strongly entrenched in the valleys of the Marne and the Seine toward Paris, they would turn their backs on the capital and move toward Epernay.Meanwhile other German forces were to crush General Gourand's army and seize Chalons. The two German armies would join and Rheims and Rheims mountain would fall without a fight.It is apparent the Germans underestimated the available Allied forces and the spirit with which they would meet the assault.Some insight into the political effect on Germany can be gained from the protestations of a pan-Germanist officer who was taken prisoner. He declared that certain Bavarian elements failed to defend their positions "earnestly" and practically accused them of treason.On the other hand, there are many evidences that the crown prince used many of the best German divisions available. Among those identified are the Sixth division of the "Invincible" Brandenburgers, who acquired that title when the kaiser specially recognized them in February, 1916, for the capture of Fort Douaumont, one of the principal defenses of Verdun.In the Champagne offensive alone, the Germans were compelled to throw in four new divisions (48,000 men) after Thursday's fighting, to repair the breaks in their line, scattering them battalion by battalion along various sectors, although they had been intended as a part of the precious reserves that were to definitely turn the tide of the battle and force immediate peace.One of the new things introduced in the battle was a new German armored truck. These were used in transporting munitions across fields and along the roads under heavy shell fire. The trucks have six wheels, with a caterpillar tractor and their armored bodies are 25 feet long, 9 feet high and 8 feet wide.Isolated Allied units who were cut off in the early fighting were supplied with food by French aviators until they were rescued.

ANOTHER DRIVE IN ITALYAllies Continue to Gain on Soissons-Rheims Salient, Advancing Beyond Chateau-Thierry; German Leadership Proposed For Austrians In New Italian Offensive; Honduras Joins Ranks of Allies; Fourteen Enemy Airplanes and Three Balloons Shot Down on Friday.LONDON, July 22.—The Germans are burning villages inside the "Soissons and Rheims salient and are believed to be preparing a general withdrawal to the Vesle river line, it is learned authoritatively this afternoon.
This would represent a retirement of 20 miles north of Chateau-Thierry.Fighting along the line south of Soissons is growing in intensity. A German rear guard action north of Chateau-Thierry penetrated the allied line half a mile by fierce counter attacks. The fighting is particularly violent south of Soissons where the opposing armies are fighting for Bersey.WITH THE AMERICANS IN FRANCE, July 22.—The Americans continue to advance from the Marne and beyond Bezu-St. Germain, five miles northeast of Chateau-Thierry. In the meantime both ends of the Soissons-Rheims salient are being pinched in by combined French, American, and British attacks. The American advance has been rapid.The fighting is heavier on the west side of the salient than in the middle where the Americans are having difficulty in maintaining contact with the enemy owing to the rapidity of his withdrawal.There is bitter fighting in the towns of Griselles and Bezu-St. Germain.
Street fighting is in progress. Aviators report anti-aircraft guns firing at them from the forest of Epels, indicating the Germans are holding their guns there for a stand.The Marne has been crossed at several places. The German artillery fire is becoming feebler hourly.PARIS, July 22.—Allied forces are progressing everywhere on the Soissons-Rheims salient except on a small front north of Chateau-Thierry, where the Germans have slowed down the advance by a heavy rear guard action.
This enemy resistance on a front of seven miles, is designed to cover the retirement of heavy German forces.The allied advance is continuing on the whole Soissons-Rheims salient, varying in speed with the degree of German resistance.The Germans apparently are concentrating their defense south of Soissons and north of Chateau-Thierry, to protect the west wing and center of their retirement. Elsewhere the enemy is depending mostly upon its artillery to stem the allied attacks—probably employing the guns in covering further withdrawals of men and supplies.Admission by enemy prisoners that the retirement will continue to Fere-en-Tardenois means the Germans will attempt to make a stand along the Ourcq, 12 miles north of Chateau-Thierry.PARIS, July 22.—The Germans have withdrawn through Epieds to Beau-vardes, La Liberte declared today.Epieds is 4 miles northeast of Chateau-Thierry, while Beauvardes is 7 miles northeast of Chateau-Thierry and 6 miles north of the Marne, at Fossey.
This indicates a withdrawal north of Chateau-Thierry of nearly three miles more than previously reported.GENEVA, July 22.—The submarine base at Kiel is filled with submarines undergoing repairs, according to advices reaching here from Hamburg.WASHINGTON, July 22.—Honduras declared war on Germany on July 19, the legation announced today.ROME, July 22.—The Austrian army is preparing for a monster offensive against the Italians, dispatches published here in the Idea Nazionale declared today. The drive, it was stated, will be under German leadership, with an Austrian in nominal command.LONDON, July 22.—Contrary to the German offensive, the allied counteroffensive instead of diminishing its progress, is growing in scope and power. From an apparently limited attack it has rapidly developed into one of the greatest battles of the war. Allied troops including French, Americans, Italians and British are attacking on a front of more than a hundred miles, extending from Soissons to eastward of Rheims.The German war office, admitting participation of Americans in the counter-offensive for the first time, appears highly indignant at the employment of "black Americans" and "French subject peoples." Berlin claims the repulse of all attacks between the Aisne and the Marne and between the Marne and Rheims where the Allies made substantial gains. Along the Marne where thousands of Germans were slain in their retreat, Berlin claims the retirement was carried out without interference.Based on the official report of the French war office, the allied line now apparently extends from Soissons southeastward to the vicinity of Charlie, southward through Oulchy-Le-Chateau to Rocourt, southeastward to Chartres, eastward along the north bank of the Marne to Reuil northward to St. Euphrasie, thence northward around Rheims in a semi-circle and eastward in a comparatively straight line to Main de Massiges.Unofficial reports place the number of enemy prisoners counted at more than 20,000 with more than 400 guns captured.BRITISH AVIATORS DOING VERY VALUABLE WORKLONDON, July 22.—Fourteen enemy airplanes were shot down Friday by British aviators and in addition three others were driven down out of control and three observation balloons were destroyed, the British air ministry stated today in its communice.
Seven British machines are missing, the statement said."Eighteen tons of bombs were dropped by us on different targets, including Courtrai and Lille railways, the Bruges docks, three large ammunition dumps and hostile billets on various parts of the front.

"Slightly more fighting took place on the previous day and fourteen enemy machines were brought down. Three other hostile machines were driven down out of control and three German observation balloons were destroyed. Seven of our airplanes are missing.

"As a result of photographic reconnaissance carried out on the twentieth instant, extensive damage is revealed at the hostile aerodrome at Morhange, attacked on the night of the 19th. One large shed and three hangars were destroyed."

DESPERATE COUNTER ATTACKS ARE COMPLETELY REPULSED

PARIS, July 11 (Noon).—Desperate German counter attacks on a five-mile front north of Chateau-Thierry, were completely repulsed, the war office announced today. Elsewhere on the front, the German resistance consisted only of artillery fire.

"North of the Ourcq and between the Marne and Rheims, especially in the Courtrai and Roi woods, the Germans simply employed artillery fire," the communiqué said.

"Between the Marne and the Ourcq, in the Grisolles and Bezu-St. Germain regions, German counter attacks were broken up."

"Bezu-St. Germain is four miles directly north of Chateau-Thierry. Grisolles is five miles northwest of Bezu-St. Germain."

"On the whole front our positions were maintained."

part of the rations. Everywhere the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. are keeping in touch with the forward contingents, issuing cigarettes and chocolate to the wounded. One rolling kitchen was in a field marked with German dead. I saw American and French officers and men alike, holding up their "chow ladles" for hot food.

American soldiers entering Chateau-Thierry with the French were overwhelmed by the greeting of the civilians. More than two hundred, mostly old men and women, had remained in the town during the German occupation. They were locked in the cathedral when the boghes evacuated, but liberated themselves.

The boghes looted the town thoroughly, breaking into shops and private houses and taking all valuables. There were barricades in all the principal streets, but apparently the town had been lightly held during the last few hours of German occupation. It was not greatly damaged by the allied artillery.

The French took five prisoners when they entered. One of the boghes said he had overslept and that other members of his company failed to awaken him when they withdrew. The other four were telephone operators who voluntarily remained to maintain communication with their retreating comrades.

Some of the German steel pontoon bridges are being used by the American and French, while all along the line up to Soissons German cannon have been turned around and are firing on the boghes.

Weakening of the German artillery fire near Chateau-Thierry was explained by prisoners to be due to lack of ammunition.

Allied artillery fire along the communicating roads prevented the enemy from bringing up supplies.

The French were the first to enter Chateau-Thierry, the Americans later coming up and moving through the village to positions well to the northward. One American unit, advancing northwest of Chateau-Thierry, encountered so little resistance, including artillery fire, that it marched through one town in squad formation.

SAN FERNANDO CANNERY BUSY WITH APRICOTS

SAN FERNANDO, July 22.—The new San Fernando cannery, erected this year and completed just in time to begin work on the apricot crop, is running full capacity, with about 175 people employed, many of whom were sent out from Los Angeles to relieve the local labor shortage. The new cannery, which cost approximately $70,000, is drawing fruit from the Van Nuys and Owensmouth districts, where the new orchards coming into bearing, this season have increased the fruit yield of the districts far beyond the capacity of each locality to handle. F. C. McCabe, manager of the plant, states that he expects his company to be able to handle 1500 tons of apricots and 2000 tons of peaches.

SAMSON BARBECUE AT COUNTY PARK WAS BIG EVENT

Three hundred ranchers, many of whom are owners of Samson tractors, gathered at Orange County Park on Saturday to attend the educational barbecue as guests of E. G. Stinson of Orange, Samson tractor dealer for this territory. There are 170 Samson owners in this county, says Mr. Stinson, and the majority of them were on hand, as well as other practical ranchmen who may later become purchasers of the tractors. The purpose of the gathering was to get Samson users acquainted with each other and to swap experiences. A Samson Sieve-Grip tractor was on hand to illustrate different features discussed by the several speakers. The meeting began at 9:30 a. m. and continued till 3:30 p. m., with free barbecue dinner at noon.

Among the five-minute speakers who addressed the assemblage, were A. R. Sprague, county farm advisor; C. E. Witherell, western sales manager for the Samson; F. S. Hurst, factory expert; H. L. Marsh, manager Southern California distributor; Supervisor T. B. Talbert, Phil Kerr of the Los Angeles Machinery Company, Mr. Southern of the Standard Oil Company, and Attorney F. C. Drumm of Orange. Kerr talked on deep tillage tools and Southern's subject was lubrication.

The barbecue was a success in every way, and it is safe to say that all attending gained some valuable information from the talks and demonstrations.

GIVE BRONZE BADGE LONG-TIME CONTRACT 25 LBS. LIMIT SUGAR FOR WAR-WINNING PURCHASE EXCEPT BY WORK ONLY AGAINST THE RULE SPECIAL PERMISSION

Delivery Must Be Within 60 Days of Order, Says the Food Administration

Here is another—and the latest—regulation with regard to the purchase of sugar during the present shortage. If you have already purchased 25 pounds of sugar for canning purposes, you cannot buy more for canning without getting a special permit from the county food administrator, C. S. Crookshank. If you have bought 10 pounds, you can't buy more than 15 pounds more without permit. If you have as yet bought no sugar for canning since the regulations became effective, you can only buy 25 pounds in all. In other words, 25 pounds of sugar, formerly the canning limit for one purchase, is now made the limit for all purchases, except by special permission.

As announced in the Register on Saturday, some of the dealers have no large stocks of sugar on hand, and in justice to themselves can sell little or no sugar for canning purposes.

Another ruling is that all retailers MUST now keep a record of 2-pound and 5-pound sales of sugar for domestic use, filing this record with the county food administrator once a week for checking.

STANDARD STRIKES OIL ON MESA, REPORT

A report that the Standard Oil Company had struck oil on its Newport Mesa lease was circulated in Santa Ana today, and was also heard at Newport Beach. A week ago the hole had reached a depth of over 2300 feet. Details of the reported oil strike were not available today and the report could not be confirmed. The report may have resulted from the fact that drilling on the well has been stopped and it will now be cemented to shut off the water.

WORLD'S SERIES MAY BE PLAYED WITHIN NEXT FEW WEEKS

Work or Fight Ruling Will Speed Up Ball Season's Closing Ceremonies

PITTSBURG, July 22.—The National league heads in conference tomorrow will agree to play out the entire year's schedule, regardless of the action of any other league, President Dreyfuss told the United Press this afternoon, following long distance telephone conversation with Government officials at Washington.

By H. C. HAMILTON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, July 22.—Guided by the belief that the elimination of its draft age player from baseball into some useful occupation will be a gradual process, arrangements were being made today by magnates of the two big leagues to go ahead with their schedules. Ban Johnson's order directing that all American league parks be closed at once has been withdrawn.

American league club owners will meet today in Cleveland. It is believed they will reach a decision to struggle along until a certain number of games have been played, with the world's series to come immediately afterward. It is entirely probable that things will be speeded up, 100 games got out of the way and the world's series played within three weeks.

The National league, it was announced today, will hold its meeting tomorrow at noon in Pittsburgh instead of New York as originally announced.

The world's series will be practically a war benefit in its entirety. Boston and Chicago would participate. Kansas City Gets Pennant CHICAGO, July 22.—In compliance with Secretary Baker's work or fight ruling, there will be no more baseball in the American association during the war. At a special meeting here yesterday the directors unanimously agreed to President Hickey's recommendation that the league season be closed following yesterday's games. The pennant was awarded to Kansas City, the leading club.

The association was the first league in organized baseball to take official action on Baker's ruling.

May Finish Present Season

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Ball players, affected by Secretary Baker's edict that they must do essential work or fight, may be permitted to finish the present season, it was intimated on high authority here today. While there was no official confirmation, it was stated that a conference between representatives of the major leagues and war department officials would be held within the next 48 hours, to determine the question.

BRITISH GAIN MORE GROUND NORTH OF ALBERT

LONDON, July 22.—British troops gained more ground yesterday south-east of Hebuterne, north of Albert, Field Marshal Haig reported today.

"Further ground was made by our troops yesterday southeast of Hebuterne and a hostile bombing attack in the neighborhood was repulsed," the statement said. "We captured a few prisoners."

"In conjunction with French troops, we carried out a successful minor enterprise that night south of Villers-Bretonneux, capturing a few prisoners and machine guns."

"Our raiding parties entered the enemy's trenches during the night at Neuville-Vitasse, at Calonne-Sur-Lys and north of Bailleul and brought back prisoners."

"A hostile raid in the last mentioned sector was repulsed."

"Hostile artillery was active in the Lochre sector."

FAKE HAM PEDDLERS ARRESTED, DEEP IN THE LEGAL TANGLES

On three charges, Fred Epps and Clifford Hill, both of Los Angeles, were arrested Saturday by City Marshal Jernigan. They are accused of selling short-weight phony "hams," of using over-weight scales and of peddling without a license.

County Sealer George McPhee says that these men are at the old game of selling housewives shoulders for hams. The story told by Epps and Hill was remarkably like the ones told two or three years ago when the same peddling graft was worked here. They said they lived at Downey, that their father sugar-cured the hams and that they were selling at less than the local stores and meat shops. As a matter of fact, they sold the shoulder meat, sometimes called picnic hams, for thirty-nine cents when the local retail price is thirty cents.

Epps and Hill were fined $5 apiece by City Recorder Heathman for peddling without a city license. The pair went before Justice Cox, after spending from Saturday afternoon until today in jail. They pleaded not guilty to selling meat underweight. However, McPhee has the evidence to show that a shoulder "ham" sold to William Gilbert for five and a half pounds weighs less than five pounds. Hill said he merely worked for Epps, and knew nothing about any of the dealings. Epps pleaded guilty to having an untested scales, and on that he will be sentenced tomorrow. The two men are held in jail awaiting $50 bail.

Epps admitted he did not live in Downey and bought the meat in Los Angeles. He said the scales was a gift from a friend who was drafted.

Anaheim police have notified the city marshal's office that a Briscoe touring car, No. 317,781, registered in the name of Mrs. M. G. Robbins of Coronado, ran into a horse and buggy in that city. The people in the buggy were hurt, but the machine speeded away without stopping to inquire the amount of the damage.

FOR HIS ARREST HE IS SUING SHERIFF FOR SUM $25,500

Alleging false arrest, Dolman Robinson of Brea today brought suit for $25,500 against Sheriff C. E. Jackson. Last May Robinson was suspected of having had something to do with stealing automobile tires from the Santa Fe train between Fullerton and Corona. He was arrested after Santa Fe officers had made an investigation and had reported to the sheriff's office here.

Robinson states in his complaint, filed by Los Angeles attorneys, that he was arrested near Anaheim by Under Sheriff Iman, and was placed in jail and kept there from May 18 to May 20. On his preliminary examination he was discharged. While it was proven beyond question that the tires found in Robinson's possession were stolen from the freight car, Robinson declared that he had bought the tires from another man.

Robinson's attorneys asked the sheriff this morning if he would compromise the case, and the sheriff replied that he would not give five cents to have the case withdrawn.

ANAHEIM MAN ACCUSED STEALING W. S. STAMPS

ANAHEIM, July 22.—The disappearance of $200 worth of War Savings Stamps on Thursday afternoon from F. A. Yungbluth's store has caused the arrest of A. Ashley.

Thursday noon Mrs. Yungbluth gave her husband $200 worth of War Savings stamps which their two children, Dorothy and Edward had bought and asked him to take them to the store and place them in the safe.

Upon arriving at the store Mr. Yungbluth found a customer waiting for him, so he laid the envelope containing the stamps and a couple of bank books on the cutting table. Later he returned for the envelope and placed it in the safe. Upon investigation later in the evening, Mr. Yungbluth found that the stamps had been taken from the envelope. And as the safe had been locked his only deduction is that the stamps were taken while the envelope was lying on the table.

As a result of the disappearance of the stamps, Yungbluth has had A. Ashley, who makes the rounds of the different stores picking up second hand clothing, arrested and he has been placed in jail charged with felony, to-wit: grand larceny, and his hearing set for next week.

ADVISES SCOTT TO GET OUT OF ORANGE COUNTY

In rendering judgment in favor of Mrs. Lillian Emmet Berns of Delhi, giving her a divorce from Bernard S. Berns of Anaheim, Judge West made it very plain that he was convinced that there was enough perjury committed during the trial to send a good many people to prison if it was all proven and divided up among a good many people. While granting a divorce to Mrs. Berns and placing title of the property, which she owned before she married Berns, in Mrs. Berns, Judge West advised Bob Scott, who was one of the stumbling blocks in the affairs of the Berns family, to get out of the county.

Today Judge West is trying an action for settlement between George H. Weatherly and L. W. Bushard, both of Anaheim. Alexander for $4500. Bushard alleges Weatherly had no interest in the stock. Williams & Rutan are attorneys for the plaintiff, and W. M. Brown and Clyde Bishop appear for the defendant.

GOV. STEPHENS TO ADDRESS METHODIST MEETING

Leaguers End Encampment at Huntington Beach; M. E. Opens This Evening

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 22.—Governor W. D. Stephens will speak at the Methodist camp meeting in Huntington Beach Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. The Methodist of Southern California are coming in today and the prospects are that the attendance will be the largest in the history of the assembly meetings in this city which covers a period of 11 years. The meetings will continue for two weeks and Lincoln A. Ferris will be the evangelist. The musical Clarks will be in charge of the singing.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 22.—The Epworth Leaguers closed their series of meetings this morning with what is known as their morning watch at 6:30, thus ending one of the most successful week's work ever taken up in this place along similar lines. The registration reached the grand total of one thousand, which fell a little short of the number planned, and this fact may be accounted for in the number of our young men who have gone to the war from the ranks of the leaguers. Among the most prominent and enthusiastic league workers was Rev. Charles W. Scott of Ontario, who had charge of the athletic sports. Much is due to the efforts of Mr. Scott in making the league gathering the grand success it has been as he believes in every one carrying their religion into their sports as well as their every day business affairs, living examples of Christ in all things, and not Christians on Sunday and at church only. "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

The Sunday morning sermon was delivered by Rev. Ray Moore of Los Angeles and was an earnest call to the young people to make a start in the Christian life.

The Methodist services will begin this evening and continue for two weeks, in charge of Dr. Lincoln A. Ferris, who will preach each evening and sometimes at the morning services at 11 o'clock. Tomorrow (Tuesday) morning at 11 o'clock Gov. Wm. D. Stephens will address the people, and later in the week Bishop A. W. Leonard, and Prof. Tully C. Knowles at the same hour. The morning hours will be devoted to prayer service followed by Dr. John G. Hill, professor of religious education at the University of Southern California, under the heading of "An Hour with Bible Books" or "Modern Messages from Ancient Masters." There will also be held each morning a meeting for pastors only, where many of the master preachers will have opportunity to bring a message on some phase of the ministry, and others on some phase of the Sunday school work which will be given a prominent place in each morning period.

There will be no regular evangelistic services in the afternoon, but the different missionary societies will hold their tent meetings at that time.

The musical program will be in charge of the Musical Clarks. Mr. Clark has a fine tenor voice, and Mrs. Clark is a gifted contralto. They will be assisted by Mrs. Mabel Hardwick Stewart, one of the sweetest gospel singers known. They play at least a dozen different instruments which add charm and zest to the music.

The directors of the Methodist Assembly, feeling that war times have created new and greater spiritual demands among the people, have arranged the greatest program in the history of the camp "Arbamar."

Mr. John Vawter and wife of Santa Ana were Sunday callers at the beach. Mr. R. E. Lynden and daughter Ethel of Santa Ana visited a few days in the city last week.

Mr. J. H. Winn and family of Long Beach spent Sunday with friends here. The hundreds of autos that packed Ocean avenue and other side streets yesterday is a good indication of the increased attendance of Sunday visitors at the beach.

WOMAN CUT BY GLASS WHEN AUTO BUMPS SIGN POST

Car Damaged When Driver Failed to Make Turn at First and Main Sts.

Because their automobile, an Oakland Six, was only travelling about ten miles an hour, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Avery of 1151 Sherman Drive, Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Avery of Chicago, escaped serious injury this morning when their machine struck the curb. Goodrich sign post and telephone pole at the southeast corner of First and Main streets. The Goodrich post was splintered.

The party was on its way to San Diego to spend tonight and tomorrow and not being familiar with the road, were on the lookout for the sign to show the turn. J. T. Avery, who was at the wheel, saw the sign too late to make the turn and ran into the curb.

The windshield was smashed to pieces and Mrs. C. K. Avery, who was on the front seat, was badly cut about the face by the splintered glass. She was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Peters and later to a physician's office, where several stitches were taken to close the wounds. None of the others of the party was injured.

The left front wheel was broken off and smashed and the fender bent up badly.

MRS. S. HILL PASSED AWAY EARLY TODAY; ONE OF PIONEERS

Well Known Woman Dies at Hemet Where She Went to Benefit Her Health

One of Santa Ana's oldest pioneers, Mrs. Lucy A. Hill, wife of the late S. Hill and mother of G. P. Hill, passed away suddenly at about 7 o'clock this morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. McDowell at Hemet, where she was taken three weeks ago in the hope that her health might be benefited. She was a sufferer from asthma.

The change in climate seemed beneficial and this morning at 6 o'clock she seemed better than at any time since being at Hemet. But at 7 o'clock she sank away without warning, it is thought from a paralytic stroke.

Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Hill returned this afternoon from Hemet and will make arrangements for the funeral service, the body to be brought here for interment beside that of her husband. Mr. Hill the only child and his mother has made her home with him since his father's death.

Mrs. Hill has lived here thirty-five years and was 87 years of age.

CRIMINAL BUREAU IDEA REACHES OTHER STATES

SACRAMENTO, July 22.—California's action in establishing a state criminal identification bureau may result in a similar bureau being established in every state in the Union, according to C. S. Morrill, superintendent of the bureau.

Morrill bases his prediction on a letter received from the headquarters of the International Sheriffs and Police Officers' Association in St. Paul, in which a copy of the bill creating the state bureau is requested. It is the aim of the association to boost the organization of a criminal identification bureau in every state, the letter says.

NEED ATHLETIC DIRECTORS FOR Y.M.C.A. WORK ACROSS SEA

Call Is Issued to College Men Living In Orange County

"Los Angeles, Cal., July 22, 1918.

"To T. E. Stephenson, Santa Ana, Cal.

"The Y. M. C. A. needs men above draft age to direct recreational athletic activities among troops in France. Expert coaching ability is not necessary. A general knowledge of games, good health, character and personality are desired. Dr. Fisher of New York, who is directing this work, will be at the Los Angeles Athletic Club Tuesday morning, July 23, at 10 o'clock. Please have qualified Stanford and other university men of your vicinity attend.

"B. M. CHERRINGTON."

The Y. M. C. A. has a call for men of varied qualifications, but a special effort is being put forth by Stanford University alumni to provide the Y. M. C. A. with as many athletic directors as it is possible for the alumni to arrange for. Other universities and colleges are putting forth efforts in the same line.

At least two Stanford University men from Orange county have already signed up for work with the Y. M. C. A. They are Thomas L. McFadden of Placentia and William P. Magee of San Juan Capistrano.

The above were received from Los Angeles announcing an important meeting to be held in Los Angeles tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. It is important because Dr. Fisher is the head of the athletic work for the Y. M. C. A. War Council and from him those who are interested in pushing the signing up of volunteers for athletic work in the army will get complete details of what is wanted and what the opportunity is.

Any college man who has a good knowledge of athletics, even though that knowledge was gained some years ago, will fit into the arrangement excellently. Those who are selected to go to France will be given preliminary training.

"There are probably dozens of men in Orange county who could qualify for this work," said Stephenson today. "The Y. M. C. A. has openings for business men, for mechanics and for men in other lines of work. These should apply directly to the Y. M. C. A. Recruiting committee at room 5, Orange County Trust & Savings Bank building, Santa Ana. The meeting in Los Angeles tomorrow morning is for college men who may be able to go to France and also for college men who though unable to go themselves, can attend that meeting and, gaining knowledge of what is wanted, return and be of real use in meeting the needs of the Y. M. C. A. by keeping their eyes open for men who can go.

"Those who do sign applications for selection to go to France as athletic directors for the Y. M. C. A. will have their recommendations passed upon by the Orange County Recruiting committee.

"Stanford University has already given two men from this county into the ranks of the volunteers, though neither has as yet been called. The recommendations and applications of McFadden and Magee have just been forwarded, and they will probably receive a call to service within the next month. McFadden and Magee were both well known football players at Stanford, McFadden as an end and Magee as a fullback. After graduation, McFadden was a successful athletic coach in Oregon and Washington. Magee beside being a first class football man was a good baseball player.

"McFadden has built up a good law practice in the northern end of the county and Magee is foreman of the big O'Neill ranches in the southern end of the county.

"There ought to be a number of University of California, Pomona College, University of Southern California and Occidental College men above the draft age, in Orange county who will attend the meeting in Los Angeles tomorrow. There ought to be a good many former students of eastern colleges now living here who will also attend. A man may never have been an athlete and yet fit into this call exactly."

FULLERTON, July 22.—City Recorder Knowlton raked in the sum of $32 for the city treasury on Friday. Three men pleaded guilty to speeding. The first was R. Dearman of Colton, who rides a motorcycle. Shirley of Covina paid $15 for speeding up around the bridge at the forking of the Brea and La Habra roads.

Keep Comfortable on the Summer Washday

Use Fels-Naptha and you may avoid boiling and hard rubbing, save work and finish the wash in far less time.

Summer washday is so much more comfortable when there's no boiling or hard rubbing. The clothes wear longer, too. Continual boiling weakens any material and hard rubbing puts more holes in skirts and waists than daily wear.

COLONEL CHOPS WOOD FOR THE DOUGHNUT GIRLS

Salvation Army Lassies Find Work Is Best Antidote For Homesickness

BY MISS GLADYS MCINTYRE (Written for the United Press) WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS AT THE FRONT, June 16. (By mail).
One bright morning a few days ago just after we had awakened and before we had begun our work in the kitchen we heard some one chopping wood just back of the canteen. We were pleased, for we needed wood chopped, and it is always nicer to have some doughnut volunteer to do it than to have to ask.

I told my sister it must be the homesick doughnut boy who had said the day before that chopping wood for us took him back to home and his mother. He said he felt better after chopping some wood. After a while we left our billet and went around to the kitchen. Who do you suppose was out there chopping the wood?

It was not the homesick doughnut boy, or any other doughnut boy, but the colonel of the regiment himself. We were too surprised to see him swinging the axe to know what to say, and almost forgot to thank him. He said he liked his new job, and accepted our invitation to have breakfast with us. But the doughnut boys all say he is encroaching on their rights when he chops wood for us.

The Homesick Soldier

The homesick doughnut boy was an interesting problem to us. He had received no mail for four months from home, and read in a paper one of his pals had received of the death of his sister. His father is not living either, and the poor boy could hardly keep from crying.

Of course we wanted to do something for him, but it is hard to help everyone like that, when you don't know them. We don't dare to show too much attention to anyone, no matter how much he needs it, because it wouldn't be fair to the others. So we just put the homesick doughnut boy to work. He did everything we suggested, cut wood, fixed benches, fried doughnuts, and by the end of the day he was whistling and singing. Work seems to be the best thing we can give them when they are homesick.

From time to time we have had boys near our canteen who were more help than the ordinary crowd. They usually were more faithful than others, and got to be our favorite workers—though we always tried to stick to our rule and never be partial.

But we can't let the boys make pies or doughnuts. They never would learn to do it right, though some of them could be trusted with dipping doughnuts, or putting the pies in the oven, and removing them, if we tell them when they are done. We divide the work among us. I always mix the doughnut dough and make the pies, and my sister manages the financial end of the canteen. That arrangement gives us both the work we like best.

We've just renewed the pie business, but not permanently, we fear. We had no oven in this little village we are now in, and couldn't bake pies for a long time. But the boys' mouths watered for pie, and finally a lieutenant found an old French stove in some ruins. We had to half bury it to strengthen it enough for use, but it works well enough to give the boys a taste of pie every week or so. Pie day always means a riot, so many boys want a slice.

MANY GIRLS NEEDED TO FILL POSITIONS
LEFT BY WAR NURSES

After several years of careful study and research work, Ethel Gillett Thorp is appearing in all the cities of California to give her most vital message on the child question and speaks at Clune's Theater next Tuesday evening. Much is being done by earnest workers to solve the difficult problems which our nation is confronting today, and one of the most important of these problems has to do with the young American citizens.

This is to be known as the century of the child, and the eighteen years that have passed have been hopeful ones.
In the first decade, there has been the establishment of the juvenile court, which has been the medium through which many young boys and girls have been saved from a dark future; but even in the juvenile court there is much room for improvement, the development is slow but sure. The child labor laws, the passing of the new law, help all to feel encouraged, but to offset the good things there remain all the slums, inadequate playgrounds, alcoholism, and a general lack of organization which makes follow-up work almost an impossibility. This is especially noticeable in the large cities, and Mrs. Thorp's work points out many cases which do not have to be, and should not exist.

One of the most important professions today is that of the public health nurse. There has been through the years of the new century a crying need for nurses. Now that we are at war, 40,000 nurses have been taken from the Child Welfare Department, and their places have to be filled. Not all young girls can expect to go to the front to nurse, and because they cannot, it should not prevent them from realizing their duty at home. Children need more attention than ever before, and the young girl can serve her country at home, and be a factor in the development of sturdy young men who are to take the place of those physically fit young fellows who will not return from France.

Mrs. Thorp treats the subject from every angle, and talks to her audience with so much candor, and with such an earnest appeal that she makes a vivid impression.

After completing her work in California, Mrs. Thorp will lecture in the larger cities throughout the country.

AMUSEMENTS

"THE BONDMAN" BEGINS THREE DAYS AT LYRIC TONIGHT

"Of the many characters I have portrayed on stage or screen, I will always have a strong feeling for that of Jason in Hall Caine's splendid story of 'The Bondman.' I believe it is one of my best. The final situation is so big, so dramatic; the sacrifice Jason makes is so intensely human that I am always thrilled when I think of the play."

This is the statement of William Farnum after he had learned that William Fox intended to re-make "The Bondman" as one of the Big Six of 1918. The third Farnum got in the making of the picture was felt by motion picture viewers all over the country. Critics called "The Bondman"
"a powerful picture," "original—great —thrilling," "a pronounced hit."

The 1918 edition of "The Bondman" has been revised, re-edited and re-titled and is a more powerful photoplay than ever. It will be shown at the Lyric Theater today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

AIRPLANE WRECKED IN MISSING POWER LINE

LOS ANGELES, July 22.—Aviation corps repair crews were busy at San Fernando today as a result of the wrecking of a plane driven by Major H. G. Claggett, when it crashed into a fence in dodging a power wire.

With Corporal E. Tanner as his mechanician, Claggett was flying to Sacramento with his squadron. Encountering fog, Claggett began a descent. Suddenly through the mist there loomed a heavy power cable suspended from tall poles. To clear this, he had to dive suddenly, and was unable to clear the fence in the volplaning.

Tanner was slightly cut. One wing of the machine was broken.

SEND-OFF FOR DRAFT MEN IS BIGGEST YET

Man Wounded In Attack Upon Manila Addresses Contingent at Luncheon

The biggest and most rousing send-off yet given a contingent of drafted men leaving Santa Ana for an army camp was given today to the thirty-three men who are starting this afternoon for Camp Lewis.

It is a lot of fine men who are going today, including a number of men well known in athletic life. There are ex-high school football players, ex-baseball players, and an all-around good bunch of men in the contingent.
Arthur W. Angle, baseball player, is captain, and his corporals are Lawrence W. Eaton, familiarly known to football fans as Si Eaton, Wayne C.
Stewart and Lee T. Eckart. Raymond Adkinson, one of the best known distance runners on the Pacific Coast, is in the contingent.

Every man was on hand when roll call was started at the courthouse this morning at 9 o'clock. S. W. Nau, secretary of the exemption board, gave the men directions for the day.

At noon an excellent dinner was served for the drafted men at Elks' hall. The affair was in charge of some of the luncheon committees of the Red Cross Shop. Robert Wallace and Forrest Whitson, the committee-men largely responsible for the gathering, had arranged an excellent program of music. Mrs. Watry at the piano, Mrs. Mills, violin, and Mr.
Mackey, cello, gave pleasing orchestral music. Several stirring songs were sung by the Elks' double quartet, with Mrs. Chapman at the piano, and solos by Mrs. Russell Coleman, were deeply appreciated.

R. L. Bisby was toastmaster, and the first talk was made by Recruiting Officer Young of the U. S. Navy, who is a Santa Ana man now here recruiting.

Each man was given a package of cigarettes, donated by the cigar and candy store merchants of the city.

Lew H. Wallace, who was shot through the lungs in the capture of Manila in '98 and who won a distinguished service discharge by reason of conduct performed under the eyes of General MacArthur and in a rain of Spanish bullets, addressed the drafted men and the citizens of the district.

"It is a great thing to come back and know that you have done your duty," said he. "The plan of raising an army is the best that could be devised.
Just as it is now your turn to go, so I shall go when it comes my turn. The first thing you are to learn is obedience; the second thing, prompt obedience; the third thing, obedience at any and all times."

In closing Wallace quoted words written by a soldier dying in a hospital: "Let there be no mourning in spirit or in dress."

"Like a Liberty Bond, it is an investment, not loss, when a man dies for his country."

Arthur Angle fittingly thanked the citizens of the district for the dinner and for the appreciation shown.

"We are going away to win," said he, "and we want to go."

This afternoon at 4 o'clock there gathered at the court house a crowd of citizens. An address was given by H. C. Head, and W. C. T. U. comfort bags were presented by Mrs. W. S.
Rose. The men were escorted to the station by the Home Guards of Santa Ana and Orange and by the Santa Ana Elks' band.

In the contingent leaving today were three men for other districts.
They are Guy A. Cox, sent for Shreveport, La.; Victor W. Wessell, for El Centro, Edgar E. Lang for Hebros, Neb.

Mrs. A. J. Padgham, of the state committee of the Women's Federation, announced that she was in need of bird cages and canaries, as well as photograph records and sheet music to be sent to the cantonments.

A PATRIOTIC DUTY

If Democracy is worth fighting for, it is worth voting for. No citizens can vote at the Primary Election, August 27th, unless he registered this year from the precinct in which he now resides or gets registered by Saturday, July 27th.

No citizen can vote at the Primary Election, for any candidate for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Assemblyman or Congressman, unless his party affiliation is stated in the affidavit of registration.

Those who did not state such affiliation when they registered can do so now by going to the County Clerk and making a supplementary affidavit. Saturday, July 27th, is the last day to do this, or to register.

board notified the adjutant general that only two men had listed themselves as volunteers under the special call for men of limited service for government service in the spruce woods. These two men are Glenn Purviance of Orange, who volunteers as a cook, and Robert Paine, Jr., of Santa Ana, who volunteers as a tally-man. It is not known when these men will be called, but it is probable that it will be soon after August 1, if called at all.

TO GO TO SCHOOL

SACRAMENTO, July 22.—Americanization of the alien will be made compulsory in California if a bill, endorsed by Will C. Wood, State Commissioner of Secondary Schools, to be presented at the next session of the legislature, becomes a law.

The proposed bill, which follows the model suggested by the United States Bureau of Education, provides that every minor between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one years of age who does not possess the ability to speak, read and write the English language as required for the completion of the fifth grade, must attend day or evening school to secure instruction in English for at least six hours a week, unless excused as physically or mentally unfit.

"California has approximately 200, 000 residents who are not citizens," said Commissioner Wood today in reply to an inquiry concerning the bill.

"There are also 77,000 illiterates in California. In a crisis such as this these people cannot co-operate fully with the United States government in war work. They cannot understand the appeals of Food Controller Hoover for food conservation, nor can they appreciate appeals in behalf of Liberty loans and thrift stamps."

"The war has taught us as a measure of national preparedness we should give the non-English speaking people a speaking knowledge of our language and some acquaintance with our institutions."

Commissioner Wood will recommend the bill in his forthcoming report.

MACHINES DAMAGED

IN HEAD-ON CRASH

D. Castro, who is employed by Fred Culver on his place on the San Joaquin ranch, and who was coming from San Diego about 9 o'clock last evening, made the turn at Irvine at too fast speed and could not keep on the right side of the road. As a consequence he collided head-on with a machine in which were riding Mr. and Mrs. Strain, who reside on the Jessup beam lease and who were returning home from Tustin.

No one was hurt but both machines were knocked out of commission and had to be towed to the Tustin garage for repairs.

JOHN L. ROBINSON, AIR PILOT, IS NOW OVERSEAS

That Lieutenant John L. Robinson, airplane pilot, has arrived safely overseas is the message just received by his mother, Mrs. L. E. Robinson, 615 East First street. The message, wired from Hoboken, N. J., after the ship on which he sailed had arrived safely, reads as follows:

"Dear Mother: On board ship, our group still intact. This message will signify the safe arrival on other side.
Have equipment complete and all extra necessities."

The young man, who was in the garage business in Imperial Valley, began his aviation training at Berkeley, later in turn attending school at North Island, Fort Sill, Okla.; Fort Dick, Dallas, Tex.; Fort Worth, Tex.; New York, and Hoboken. He visited his brother while in New York.

Clyde Slater of Orange, whose parents now live at Banning, was formerly in Robinson's unit, but it could not be learned here whether he went over with the local man or not. Inasmuch, however, as Slater was ready to sail a few weeks ago and Robinson says his unit is still intact, it is presumed that he also has arrived "over there."

NEWS NOTES FROM

ORANGE CITY

ORANGE, Cal., July 22.—With a full quota of boys lined up for the trip from Orange, all is ready for the annual Y. M. C. A. camping excursion to Catalina Tuesday morning.

Secretary Ralph Cole announced this morning that the full quota for Orange had been supplied, but that there would be room for several more boys due to a shortage in some of the other districts of the county.

The Orange delegation will gather at the Winterrowd garage, corner of West Chapman avenue and Olive street, Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock.
They will travel by auto to San Pedro, taking the boat there for Avalon, Catalina. From Avalon they will pro-big Y. M. C. A. camp.

The Orange party will include the following: Prof. C. E. Teach, R. G.
Cole, Prof. V. W. Brown, A. W. Road-rowd, Donald Brown, Jim Fuller, Newton Richards, George Caldwell, Lyman Booth, David Drake and Ernest Sawyer.

Orange grammar schools will resume session after the summer vacation on Monday, September 16. That date was selected at a meeting of the grammar school board last evening.

The board elected Franklin Skinner as teacher of history and boys' athletics, to take the place of Paul A.
Schmitt, who resigned to accept the post of assistant attendance officer in the Los Angeles schools. Mr. Skinner is a graduate of Los Angeles Normal and has been teaching in Huntington Beach for two years.

A brave struggle was lost when Mrs. Emma Buszek succumbed Saturday morning to a long illness. She passed away at 1:30 a. m. at the home of Mrs. Stephen McPherson in Mc-Pherson. Funeral services were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the First Presbyterian church. Interment was made in the Santa Ana cemetery.

A most enjoyable evening was spent at the Robert Appel home Thursday evening by the friends of Theodore Appel, who leaves Monday for Camp Lewis. The rooms were beautifully decorated with American flags, kewpie Red Cross nurses and a miniature statue of Liberty. The evening was spent with music, games and conversation. Ice cream, cake and punch were served. Small American flags were given to the guests. The guest of honor was presented with a handsome wrist watch with which to time himself on the drive for Berlin.
At a late hour the guests departed expressing the wish and confidence that Mr. Appel will give great service to his country.

E. G. Stinson, local Samson tractor agent and implement dealer, gave a barbecue at the County Park Saturday with a number of Orange people and residents of other sections of the county in attendance. The barbecue was an all-day affair.

A picnic supper at Newport Friday evening was enjoyed by Geo. Dierker and family, Ben Dierker and family,

SUPPOSED SANTA ANAN

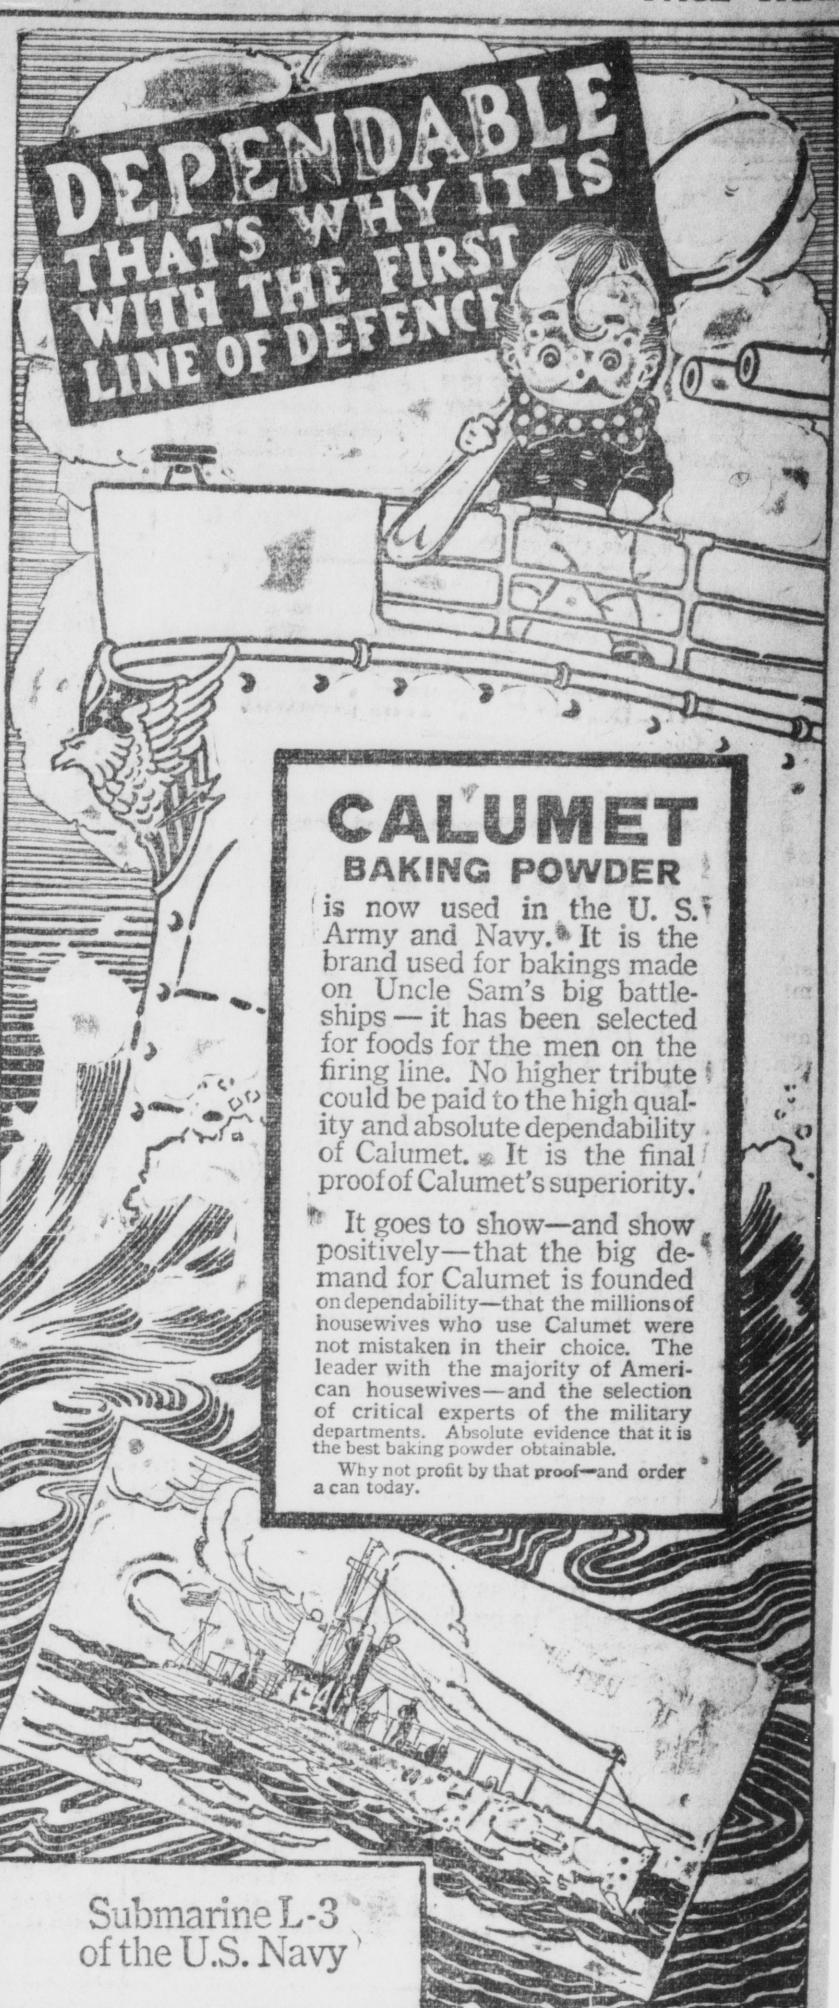

SEES THINGS MUCHLY

The Los Angeles Times today has the following interesting story:

Roy Jones of Santa Ana, early yesterday morning claimed the distinction of being robbed by no less than eleven negroes at Fifth and Central avenue, according to his story to the flying squadron.

When the officers responded to Jones' frantic call for help, in which he said he was having "a little trouble," they found the man loudly proclaiming he was $28 short.

"There were eleven negroes, and they all robbed me while I tried to keep them away," he told the police.
The officers made a report, with a notation, "Too many for a real job."

OUR BATTLE OF THE MARNE

Americans may now say with pride that we have fought our battle of the Marne. It was small compared with the great French stand that saved the world four years ago, but it was a battle of the same sort, fought in the same place and won with the same spirit.

July 15, 1918, will occupy a place in our history hereafter. On that day the Germans attacked our troops for the first time with great force, on a wide front, in a renewed effort to take Paris and the channel ports. It was our big test.

Our first news was disquieting. It told of overwhelming pressure of guns and men, and of forced retreat. It was the old story, so oft repeated in this year of trials, and always disheartening. We knew that a big push may be expected to gain several miles as a matter of course before it is stopped. We were sure that the Americans would not let the Huns through. But it was a critical moment. Those troops were new. How much would they endure?

Then came the incredible news that, after yielding ground for four miles, our boys had rallied and attacked the enemy with such fiery vigor that they drove him back, regaining every foot of lost ground, and sent him reeling across the Marne beyond his former lines, with the whole field strewn with his dead and wounded, and great numbers of Hun prisoners in the victors' hands.

It was the first time that the Germans had ever been hurled back thus on the first day of a big drive. We cannot expect to do as well as that every time. We must expect to lose sometimes, to retreat sometimes. But we cannot help regarding that great little battle of the Marne as typical of our army and prophetic of our future achievements.

It reminds us of the words of a British correspondent who, some weeks ago, observing the American lads at their new war game, spoke of their characteristic quality, "that fine temper which is the sword of the spirit." It is of Damascus steel, which may bend but never breaks. Yielding, it thrusts again, and wins.

PATRIOTIC BILL-PAYING

The Associated Retail Credit Men of New York City are planning to distribute this notice among charge customers:

"At this time, when the United States government is doing its utmost to stamp out waste wherever waste exists, it should be one of the obligations of the shopping public to pay their bills promptly. By so doing men and women engaged in writing dunning letters and other collection work would be released for more important labor. The saving thus made would give the merchant an opportunity to invest it in Liberty Bonds or subscribe to the Red Cross.

"Unproductive effort must be eliminated. Therefore, it is the duty of every one to co-operate by the prompt payment of their bills. Why not begin now?"

The case might have been put still stronger. If it is wasteful from the merchant's standpoint to have bills running over their allotted time, it is just as bad for the consumer, because the needless expense saddled on the merchant is inevitably passed on to him, in higher prices for what he buys. It is bad for everybody, because slow payment of bills by any class of people, makes a weak link in the financial system, slowing up the circulation of money, making less available cash and limiting borrowing and lending power.

If everybody would pay his bills as promptly as possible, it would speed things up along the line, saving money, labor, time and worry, helping business in general and thereby helping to win the war.

SHIPS FROM THE ORIENT

Contracts have been let by our government for the building of thirty steel cargo ships in Japanese yards, in addition to good-sized orders already placed. This is gratifying, but not particularly surprising. Here, however, is a fact that tends to open our eyes: It is announced at the same time that China has agreed to build 120,000 tons of steel ships for us, and is thoroughly prepared to carry out the contract.

The ships will be constructed in a big yard, controlled by the Chinese government, which has excellent facilities for the work. The United States will furnish the designs and a small part of the steel plates. All the other material will be provided by China, including the engines. The labor will be wholly Chinese. The first of the ships will probably be delivered within six months from the time the keel is laid.

Here is help from our oriental allies of a sort that really counts. And who would have expected it of China? That ancient country may have more surprises up her sleeve.

PENNY PIECES

It was said, a year or two ago, that the humble penny was destined to go out of circulation. If there is any such tendency, it is not apparent in the coinage figures for the past twelve months.

During that time the United States mint has produced 714,000,000 new coins, of which 528,000,000 are one-cent pieces. This beats all records for the total coinage and also for the penny output.

The little old red cent looks smaller and humbler than ever, when you buy a cigar or pay for a pound of meat. For that very reason, perhaps, it is appreciated more than before. With prices so high, people don't like to waste even a copper counter whose value is about 40 per cent nearer nothing than it was two tion of that modest coin that increases the demand for pennies.

Doing Great Work

Heroic work done by fifty American Y. M. C. A. war work secretaries with the Italian troops on the Italian front has raised the morale and fighting spirit of the men. Free hot soup, chocolate and tobacco have been distributed to the soldiers and the Y. M. C. A. workers have given aid to the wounded as well.

American aviators with the Italians are also being served and reports state that the "Y" men go into the trenches under constant shell fire. This bravery on their part has awakened a tremendous interest among the Italian troops. It has produced a new and wonderful spirit and the Italians are determined to crush the Austrians.

Information received through Y. M. C. A. secretaries with the Italians is to the effect that prisoners report that the Austrians are discouraged and anxious to quit. They are driven like cattle by officers who shoot those who mutter. They were astonished that large American forces were in Europe. Y. M. C. A. workers tell of American preparation and this news seeping into Austria is creating havoc with the morale of the enemy armies.

Several Y. M. C. A. secretaries have been decorated for bravery under fire.

Altogether the Y. M. C. A. is doing a great work in the fight against Germany.

A Nation of Financiers

We stay-at-homes are attaining technical proficiency in the art of making war. At least we believe we are by reading the infinite details necessary to upper-cut the Boche.

Perhaps the government censorship lets us have only those methods that have been relegated to the scrap heap, but at any rate we are happy in thinking that we are up-to-date on the side-lines or the far-back-lines near the score board.

We know that before even a local raid can be carried out there must be aeroplane reconnaissance to get photographs showing the lay of the Hun trenches, locations of machine gun pill-boxes and supporting strength; picked troops are sent back of our own lines for careful rehearsing; the artillery practices its co-operation in laying down the barrage; and after a certain period of intensive preparation zero hour arrives.

But knowing this we sometimes forget the work of the engineers in making the roads over which the ammunition and equipment is brought forward, the telephone men who must keep the lines of communication open, the warehouse officials of the quartermaster's corps, the soldiers who unload the big supply ships after they have wriggled through the submarine zone, the officers and crew of the convoy and the people at this end of that line which meanders through France.

In financing the war we are given another technical education so that the poorest of us knows about billion dollar loans, sur-taxes, Thrift Stamps and certificates—for we have become money lenders to Uncle Sam. Now we are given a "close-up" of United States Certificates of Indebtedness which are for the public as well as the banks. A new issue is being offered every two weeks at 4½ per cent and absorbing these is as important to the success of the Fourth Liberty Loan as the advance preparation for a gigantic offensive.

The Fightin' Dad

I used to think, when I thought at all, Success was a wad of money,
Or a front-row seat in a senate hall,
Or a King's crown—ain't it funny?
But my eyes are open now, an', say, It's the gospel truth I'm writin', The one safe brand of success today Is to win the war we're fightin'.

We can save our gold, we can lay it by Like the hoardin' of the miser, But we'll never spend it, you an' I,
If we fail to trim the kaiser.
My blood runs hot, and I feel it burn, An' my temper gets to squirmin' To think of handin' the dough I earn To a flat-faced, square-toed German.

I don't give a cuss for a holiday Or the old established hours; I've sold my watch, an' I work away To the limit of my powers.
I'm the fightin' DAD of a fightin' son, An' here on the job I'm stickin' Till the things we're battlin' for are won, An' we've handed Bill his lickin'.

OUTBURSTS OF EVERETT TRUE

THEN AND NOW

Think of the opulent days when we gleefully entered a store, Not with a pancake feathery purse, but a wallet heavy with ore. We asked for what we wanted, cared little what the price.

If we were buying T-bone steak, we got a generous slice. Potatoes, onions, apples, too, we bought by barrels or tons. The family always had the best, fat hogs the little ones.

Five cents a quart was standard milk; each egg a cent or two, And if light bread had given out, white biscuits we could chew. The Hun has changed our point of view, by his nefarious greed.

To beat his time we'll buy our bonds, Thrift Stamps, and plainly feed. —AUNT THIRIFTY.

As a fair illustration of the rabbit pest in certain portions of New Zealand, and especially in the drier sections of the south island, it is stated that on an estate lately taken over by the New Zealand government, comprising 12,446 acres of freehold and a pastoral run of 19,250 acres, there were killed or captured about 120,000 rabbits in order to deal up the property so as to make it suitable for the location of returned soldiers.

USE OF CORN SYRUP IN PRESERVING

Just how best to use corn syrup in preserving and jelly-making is a question frequently asked. Herein is the reason for its use as well as the best way to use it—always in combination with sugar.

Its use makes the product, whether preserves, jelly, marmalade or old-fashioned jam, much finer and smoother in texture, of far fruitier and richer flavor, as well as serving to prevent the hardening of the fruit and crystallization of the sugar. In other words, corn syrup gives a better product with better keeping qualities.

Here, then, is a distinct addition to our preserving methods. It has been practiced in Great Britain for many years, and England and Scotland produce the finest preserves, use large quantities, and serve them in many ways.

The secret of their success lies in the blending of corn syrup with sugar—equal weight of each is used—to make up a ¾ syrup.

RULES FOR MAKING JAMS, JELLIES OR MARMALADES

1. Observe the strictest cleanliness.
2. Use fresh, ripe and dry fruit, a bit under ripe is preferable.
3. Allow generally ¾ pound of sweetening to each pound of fruit.
4. Have a steady, but bright fire. Boil continuously and fast, and skim and stir frequently.
5. Do not fill the preserving kettle too full.
6. A good test to ascertain if it is cooked sufficiently is to allow some jelly to drop from the spoon, and when it sheets off—or sets—it is cooked enough.

The following table as to the amount of water to add is reliable, but it must be borne in mind that if the season is wet less water should be added, so more syrup is needed and longer cooking than in a dry season.

AMOUNT OF WATER ALLOWED TO EACH POUND OF FRUIT

Fruit	Proportion of Water	Fruit	Proportion of Water Apple.....	1 gill to 1 lb.	Greengage....	None.
Apricot.....	1 gill to 1 lb.	Gooseberry....	1 gill to 1 lb.
Blackberry....	None.	Plum.....	None.
Cherry.....	1 gill red currant juice to each lb.	Quince and Apple.....	Water enough to cover bottom of pan.
Carrot.....	Enough to cover carrot.	Raspberry....	None.
Current, red..	None—mash a bit.	Rhubarb.....	None.
Current, black	½ gill to 1 lb.	Rhubarb.....	½ gill to 1 lb.
Damson.....	None.	Marrow.....	½ pint to each 3 lbs. of fruit.
Grape, unripe	None.

As a rule, the procedure is as follows, though in special recipes other methods may be advised.

Place the prepared fruit in a kettle and simmer for a few minutes. Add the sugar and cook gently until it has dissolved. This is important, for if allowed to boil before it is dissolved the jam will be thin. When the sugar has dissolved, add the corn syrup—equal weight, pound for pound to the sugar—then boil fast. This again is important, as otherwise the product, whether jam, jelly or marmalade, will not be of good color.

Stir well and skim with a silver spoon. When sugar of good quality and clean fruit is used there should not be very much scum.

TIME

The length of time for boiling will depend on the kind of fruit used, as well as its condition, whether wet, ripe or unripe. Roughly, forty minutes is the time from when the fruit begins to boil, but after about twenty-five minutes it is wise to test by placing a very little in a saucer. If it sets, it is done; if you think it is done, put it on a cool part of the stove while you rest. Otherwise it may become overcooked.

PRESERVING THE SYRUP

Another method, and many jam-makers prefer this, is to first make a blended syrup and then cook the fruit in it. For example: equal weight of sugar and corn syrup; add half a pint of water, and dissolve it by gentle heat. Then boil for half an hour, add the fruit and boil quickly until the jam jellies, allowing ¾ pound of blended syrup to each pound of fruit.

SPECIAL RECIPES—GOOSEBERRY CHEESE

Wash and pick 6 pounds of gooseberries. Put them in a large pan with about a teacupful of water, just enough to keep them from sticking, stir occasionally, and cook till quite soft. Rub through a sieve, measure, and weigh the pulp, replace in a clean pan with ¾ pound of syrup (equal weight corn syrup and sugar) to each pound of pulp. Boil for about forty minutes until a little tried in a saucer will set quite firmly; put into small pots and cover. Conserves, in which skin and seeds are rejected, are most wholesome for children as a spread.

A CHEAP AND EXCELLENT JAM OF APPLE AND LEMON

The expensive item now is, of course, sugar, but even so, this jam is worth making on the score of economy. To every pound of peeled and cored apples, add ¾ pound of syrup (equal weight corn syrup and sugar), and the rind (grated) and the juice of one lemon. First, stew the apples until they become a pulp, then add the syrup, lemon rind and juice. Cook gently for forty-five minutes. The apples must be good cookers.

CHILDREN'S PARTY

Harriet Jewel Fletcher Hostess For Visitors From Washington, D. C.

A delightful party was given Saturday afternoon by little Harriet Jewel Fletcher at her home, 417 West Walnut, for her friend, Ruth Jane Culbertson, who moves soon to Pasadena, and her cousins, Junia and Janie Culbertson, of Washington, D. C.

Merry games were played at the home and at Birch Park, then refreshments were served around a table prettily decorated with ferns and American flags.

Besides the guests of honor, the little people who enjoyed the party were Georgia Belle Walton, Marjorie Lou Walton, Corinne Blackburn, Elbert Evans and Kenneth Lamb.

Don't Forget the Day Nursery

In these days of generous giving, it is well to remember that there are needs here at home, and just a little bit of giving by a number of people results in a big lot of receiving at the other end of the line. The Day Nursery is going on with its quiet but necessary work as earnestly as ever this summer, and perhaps the need for it is greater than ever before, for there are so many ways for women to work this summer, and the need for a safe place for their babies was never so keenly felt.

The most important call just at present is for some fruit and jam, and if every kindly-disposed housewife, in doing up a morning's canning or "jamming," will set aside a can for the little chaps at the Day Nursery, it will be most gratefully received. Every morning and every afternoon the children are given a lunch of bread and butter or bread and jam—and needless to say bread and jam is the most popular. There are plenty of empty jars at the nursery which Mrs. Jones will gladly exchange for the full jars.

GOD'S VETERANS

Above the hillside where these calm batallions sleep, Lulled by the light wind's wordless threnody, The sentinel stars on heav'n's high parapet still keep.
Their ancient vigil uncomplainingly—So long ago for these the march, the charge, the slow And stubborn siege; so long ago, So long ago!

When come the eager children forth with flags and flowers, And we with tremulous tones and reverent bow Tell the Grand Army's deeds—"Their flag, their faith are ours, Triumphant evermore"—we need not vow;
For they will know, o'er whose low graves the grasses grow, Greer thoughts of God—for they will know, Will surely know!

PAST MASTERS' PICNIC

Huge Gathering on Saturday at Orange County Park

The Southern California Past Masters' Association held a most enjoyable picnic in Orange County Park on Saturday. Over 300 happy picnicers were present, from all over Southern California, and no efforts were spared to make the day a particularly delightful one. The boats, ponies and burros at the park were chartered for the afternoon and indoor baseball, many other games, races, and all manner of athletic sports were on the afternoon's program.

The bountiful supper was spread on the long tables under the beautiful trees, and the many delicious viands were greatly enjoyed. Seven roasted hams, two whole roasted sheep, 100 pounds of Spanish beans and gallons upon gallons of salad were among the appetizing items on the bill of fare. Arrangements for the picnic were in charge of the Orange County Past Masters, and they achieved an enviable reputation as entertainers.

After-dinner speakers were Judge William Rhodes Hervey and Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe of Los Angeles, both of whom gave inspiring talks.

An orchestra from Los Angeles furnished music for the dancers who found the pavilion a delightful spot. Hundreds of Japanese lanterns made the picnic grounds look like a corner of fairyland all the evening.

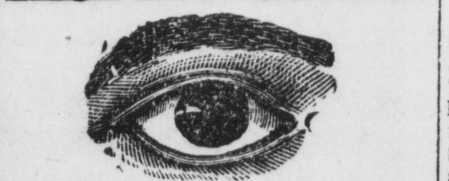

In a quiet nook of the woods, previously selected, and also lighted by Japanese lanterns, five new members were initiated into the Past Masters' organization. The initiation ceremonies were in charge of Mr. Mitchell of Los Angeles, president of the Southern California association, assisted by Judge Hervey. The candidates were H. H. Reeves of Santa Ana, Logan Jackson of Orange, S. D. Winters and A. S. Fagin of Buena Park and C. R. Allen of Fullerton.

LAST SAD RITES SAID
SAT. FOR MRS. SCOTT

The funeral service for Mrs. Marie Scott was held at 2 p. m., Saturday, July 20, at the chapel of Smith & Tuthill, Rev. W. A. Hough, whom she had known since his boyhood days, officiating. Her own pastor, Rev. J. A. Stevenson, was not able to be present at the service but his brother, Rev. T. E. Stevenson, assisted.

Miss Lella Ritter, an intimate friend, very sweetly and appropriately sang "How Firm a Foundation" and "Asleep in Jesus."

During her 13 years' life in Santa Ana Mrs. Scott had formed many very close friendships. This was shown by the kind sympathy, which was hers during her short illness, and by the beautiful flowers by which she was surrounded when she lay at rest.

Mrs. Scott quietly passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. M. Smiley, the night of July 18, within two hours of the date of her 91st birthday.

Besides Mrs. Smiley, Mrs. Scott leaves three other children, Mrs. Emma Rondebush of Santa Ana, Rev. W. T. Scott of Salem, Ore., and Chas. R. Scott of Lindsay, Cal.

Burial was made at Tulare, Cal., beside her husband, who died in 1904.

NEWS IN BRIEF FORM

Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Gordon have returned from a ten-days' stay at their ranch at Nuevo, where they have thirty acres planted to apricots. This is the first year's crop and the doctor is proud of the record made. The fruit made five tons and was sold to the Riverside cannery, the manager of which said they were the best 'cots he had ever canned. They were all of such good size that they did not have to be put through the grader.

About 144 Masons, members of Orange, Santa Ana, Fullerton, Buena Park, and Yorba Linda lodges, were present and assisted the Anaheim lodge of Masons Friday night in conferring the third degree of masonry upon Oscar Vernon Spinhauer and Joe Wagner. About midnight eighty or ninety retired to the banquet room, where ice cream and cake were served in large quantities.

Deputy Sheriff J. R. Fowler has received another letter from his son, J. Herbert Fowler, in France, in which the writer comments upon the fact that so many streets in Paris and other French cities he has seen are narrow and winding.

"I saw a large truck load of wool yesterday going to the depot consigned to the Mission Woolen Mills at Santa Ana," writes Sid Smithwick, former policeman here, now a federal guard for the Holt Manufacturing Company at Stockton, in which plant 2500 men are employed.

The directors of the Fullerton Board of Trade at their noon meeting and luncheon Saturday appointed a victory committee for the purpose of celebrating the news of victories for France. The committee has L. P. Drake as chairman and W. T. Aitken and L. O. Culp as the other members.

Fred Manske, aged 34 years, passed away Saturday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. P. Frahm, at Anaheim after an illness extending over a period of eleven weeks. Mr. Manske had lived in Anaheim five years, coming from Milwaukee, Wis. He leaves two sons, Herman and Gus Manske, and two daughters, Mrs. P. Frahm of Anaheim, and Mrs. Wm. PARIS FAVORS
CHECK VELOUR

Velour in small checks like shepherd's plaid is the most striking of the materials used for fall street suits. It is used sparingly, like all other woolen cloths, as shown in this early fall model, snapped in the Champs-Elysees. The collar, revers and vest of contrasting texture mean both style and economy, but instead of spoiling the design they make it doubly smart.

FRENCH VALOR WON HIGHEST COMMAND OF ALLY ARMIES

In Fourth Year of War Bravery and Steadfastness Is Everywhere Recognized

BY HENRY WOOD (United Press Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1918, by the United Press.)
WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES
AFIELD, July 1. (By mail.)—The fourth year of the Great War must irrevocably pass down in history as the year in which the genius of the French race, rising to new heights in the vigor and virility of its armies and in the soundness and brilliancy of its generals, was conceded through the sheer force of superiority alone the recognized military leadership of the Allied nations.

The fourth year of the Great War must always be marked by the fact that France, sending her armies to fight on the Macedonian and Italian fronts, bearing the great shocks and filling up the breaches and gaps on her own front, and sending scores of her best generals and thousands of her best officers to all parts of the world to impart her military science to all of the Allied nations, assumed at last the dominating, controlling role in the direction of the world's struggle for humanity and civilization that could only be assumed by and conceded to the nation showing the greatest genius, the greatest fitness and the greatest superiority.

This triumph was all the more remarkable in that it came at the moment when France was generally conceded and believed to be at her lowest extremes. It constituted in fact the rising of a Phoenix from her ashes almost without parallel in the world's history.

Effort in Great Crisis

But remarkable as this was, it was even more important in the fact that not only was France able to do this at a moment when her own fortunes were lowest, but at a moment when the fortunes of the entire Allied cause through the Russian catastrophe, the Italian misfortune and the Roumanian tragedy had reached their lowest ebb, and where the moment called for someone or something to step in and stem the tide.

France, after three years of warfare in which she had suffered losses exceeding those of any other Allied belligerent and in which she had made sacrifices out of proportion to her resources, apparently had very little left to offer in this emergency.

What little she had, however, she offered freely and backing it up with the fullest genius and generosity of her race that rose to new heights in this great year of appalling crises, she filled every breach that was made in the Allies' fortunes and tided over the situation to the present hopeful prospect, which with its unity of military command and America's contribution beginning to measure up to her fullest possibilities, is now opening ahead.

At Year's Beginning

When the fourth year of the Great War opened, Aug. 1, 1917, France and her Allies were already in the throes

IT STOPPED MY SUFFERING

Said Mrs. Jaynes, Speaking of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Anderson, S. C.—"I got into an awful condition with what the doctors said was an organic displacement. I would have pains so badly that they would have to put hot clothes on me and give me morphine. The doctor said I would never be any better without an operation. I made up my mind to have one, but I never have any children without it. A neighbor who knew what your medicine would do advised me to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I did so and it made me a well woman and the next September I gave birth to a healthy baby."

ORE OF BRITAIN IS HARDENED IN THE CRUCIBLE OF WAR

England Entirely Free From Industrial Disputes; Lloyd George Successful

BY ED L. KEEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1918, by the United Press.)
LONDON, July 1.—You will find my text in the gospel of war according to Lloyd-George, 147th speech, 11th paragraph, 8th sentence:

"Hammer-blows crack and crumble poor material; hammer-blows harden and consolidate good metal."

Epigrams are often misleading. Metaphors, even when coined by British statesmen, do not always stand close analysis. But the Prime Minister of England never uttered a truer, nor an apter, phrase.

Lloyd-George is somewhat of a connoisseur in hammer work. Not only has he done a good deal of it himself in the course of his turbulent career, but he frequently has played the less agreeable role of anvil. His experience of the subject runs all the way from the tack-hammer blows of Ramsay MacDonald and Philip Snowden to the trip-hammer blows of Ludendorff and Hindenburg. So, any observation he may make as to the effects of hammering when applied to certain kinds of material, is worthy of thoughtful consideration.

Many Heavy Blows

Heavy blows have been borne by the Allies in this fourth year of the war; the collapse of Russia; the driving back of the Italian army to the Venetian plains; the loss of the initiative on the western front. Cumulative in their effect, these blows might well have cracked and crumbled baser material. But what has been the result?

From the Russian debacle grew the supreme war council. Out of the Italian reverse came a very practical application of the principle of co-ordinated effort so aptly illustrated in the recent Austrian defeat. From beneath Ludendorff's gigantic hammer-blow of March 21 emerged Poch, generalissimo! And amid the din of succeeding blows was heard the voice of Pershing, speaking by order of President Wilson: "America will be proud to take part in the greatest battle of history. All we have is yours. Dispose of us as you wish."

Interpreting the Lloyd-Georgian metaphor in its wider sense—he was referring especially to the British nation—the hammerings of 1917-1918 have assuredly hardened and consolidated the Entente. As the armies of the West have been welded and annealed under the terrific pounding of a numerically superior enemy, so has the popular will-to-victory become strengthened and toughened.

Prussian Psychology Shocked

Admittedly designed to enforce a decision before the weight of America's military power could be applied effectively, the German super-offensive into which were poured the best of troops released by the Brest-Litovsk treaty, produced an effect little expected by its managers. Prussian psychology takes small account of the quality of self-sacrifice. Doubtless Potsdam was as much surprised at the alacrity and cheerfulness with which Sir Douglas Haig acceded to the arrangement whereby he and his armies were made subordinate to the command of a French general, as it was at America's renunciation of national pride in splitting up her forces and allowing them to be brigaded with the French and British armies—where they might do the most good.

This action of President Wilson's gave the knock-out blow to such lingering popular sentiment in Great Britain against the generalissimo idea as had not yet been thoroughly hammered out by the Germans themselves. The British people as a whole have shown their confidence in the policy of unified inter-Allied command, so strenuously fought for by Lloyd-George in the face of persistent opposition on the part of certain military men who happened to have the support of certain amateur strategists of the press. The commonsense of this policy appealed to the popular mind, and the dire necessities of the situation, coupled with America's splendid demonstration of approval clinched the matter.

Two Kinds of Hammering

There is one marked difference between the kind of hammering to which John Bull recently has been subjected in the field and that which he habitually permits at home. The latter is uncamouflaged. Whenever there is a Sinn Fein affair, a Robertson affair, a Maurice affair, or any other affair, big or little, the exploitation of which might throw discredit upon him, he invites the whole world to the ringside—and affords the press special facilities. It is true that he did hesitate a bit in the Maurice case, but this was only momentary. Tradition quickly prevailed, and the lid was soon lifted.

In the discussion of political matters the British press is practically ununmuzzled, and the correspondents of the foreign press are accorded greater latitude than those in any other European belligerent country, on either side. As a natural result Great Britain's home troubles are given prompt and widespread publicity, and since these episodes often make most interesting reading, the world at large is very apt to form erroneous conclusions as to the real British war-time spirit.

The Anti-George Wars

The several unsuccessful attempts that have been made to unhorse the Lloyd George administration, which was created solely for the purpose of more efficient prosecution of the war, are traceable to three elements. These, in the order of their importance are: The "Old Gang," the opponents of unified command; the pacifists. Sometimes they have operated independently, sometimes together. Combined, they occasionally have managed to stir up quite a lot of commotion—but so far the net result of their activities has merely been noise. Not only do these elements comprise a very small minority in Parliament; they do not in the slightest degree represent British public opinion.

Granted the present administration has made mistakes, these have been of commission rather than omission; and there are mighty few persons, even friends of the "wait and see" regime, who would chance restoring the Old Gang to power, even if it were possible to throw Lloyd-George out. The opponents of unified command have been squelched. As for the pacifists, they are no more numerous and not more influential than they were when the war started. It is the same old lonesome crowd.

Some Trouble Makers

The near-pacifists have been a bit more troublesome—certain political labor leaders who would meet representatives of German labor in friendly conclaves to discuss war aims. But these have lost considerable following by reason of the vigorous missionary work gratuitously done among the rank and file of British labor by James Wilson and his fellow delegates from the American Federation of Labor during their recent visit. They made it perfectly plain that American labor would countenance no such conversions so long as Prussian militarism remains in the saddle. Also they were able to report to their fellow workers at home that the great body of British workmen feels the same way on this subject, and that those who still favor hobnobbing with the enemy are mostly leaders of the political type who have lost touch with the real labor sentiment.

Under the ever-increasing pressure of war's demands, the loyalty of labor, like that of other elements of British life, has been hardened and consolidated in the last year. As this is being written comes the authoritative announcement that England is now entirely free from industrial disputes. While Ludendorff is endeavoring to hammer his way through to Paris and the channel ports, the workmen and workwomen of Great Britain, in the shipyards and countless munition factories, are doing their best to hammer the way to victory.

In the further language of England's great apostle of optimism: "There is good ore in British hearts. It has stood the test of centuries. It will stand this."
